What's new in K-Point Ski Jumping:

history (column) In Alpine skiing in the US, K-Point can refer to either K-Point (Snack Point) on at Lake Chelan, the ultimate destination of the Alpine Skiing World Cup circuit (Anzinois) (K-Point); or K-Point (Ski Jump) on at Squaw Valley USA, the site of the first NorAm ski jumping competition held in the United States in 1966. However, in international ski jumping, K-Point and the K-Point Trials refer to ski jumping from the K-Point, which is located on the Parabolic Hill at the Nellis Air Force Base, near Las Vegas, Nevada. This location was also used for the 1980 Olympics. I'm very confused by what is the difference between variable without brackets 'variable' and variable with bracket 'variable[' in python. For example, consider this the the code : import numpy as np a = np.array([1, 2, 3, 4, 5]) b = [1, 2, 3, 4, 5] a = a.tolist() b = b.tolist() print (a, b) #prints [1, 2, 3, 4, 5] [1, 2, 3, 4, 5] Problem: I don't understand why the variable without brackets (which seems to create a slice object) don't work the way I expected. What I'm trying to do is I'm trying to create a new array containing specific values. For example, look at this code: import numpy as np a = np.array([1, 2, 3, 4, 5]) b = [1, 2, 3, 4, 5] c = a[1:3].tolist() print (c) #prints [2] d = a[1:3].tolist() print (d) #prints [2
