The appeal is the latest in a series of attempts to get justice for Jay Burleson, the most recent being a ruling that allowed Burleson to serve part of his sentence in one prison and part in another, depriving him of his right to parole when he is finished serving the time. Burleson's parole appeal is just one of numerous such appeals. When the appeal is denied, Burleson will have to serve the rest of his 17-year sentence. The parole appeal was denied March 10. The denial seems fair enough, but it takes more than a few hours to evaluate the case. Meanwhile, Burleson is unable to pay for an attorney, which would allow his case to proceed, and he is unable to pay for his own appeal. Shouldn't Burleson have the opportunity to state his case and to have a proper hearing? While we agree that it is not the most expedient manner to delay a case, we believe Burleson should have his appeal heard and that the right to a court appeal should outweigh the needs of any individual inmate. Please consider this plea. Q: Animate jQuery Slider I'm having trouble animating some jQuery code. I'm trying to make a simple slider show the items visible. This is working, and I can see them move. However, it just shows the very first image, the others aren't there anymore. How to animate the jQuery Slider correctly? JSfiddle of the code This is the jQuery code:

$(function() { $(".slide-container").css("background-image", "url('../images/photos/slide2.jpg')"); $('.panel-1').hide(); $('.panel-2').hide(); $('.panel-3').hide(); $('.panel-4').hide(); $('.panel-5').hide(); $('.panel-6').hide(); $("a").click(function() { $($("this").attr("href")).fadeIn(800); $(".panel-1").fadeIn(800); $(".panel-2").fadeIn(800); $(".panel-3").fadeIn(800); $(".panel-4").fadeIn(800); $(".panel-5").fadeIn(800); $(".panel-6").fadeIn(800); }); });
```

 A: If you use fadeIn or fadeOut, you need to set the complete callback to a function that will run when the animation is finished. From the docs,
