Pdms 12.1.Q: Unable to read data from a device connected to a Raspberry Pi 3 I'm new to Raspberry Pi and I'm trying to write a python script to read data from a micro controller with some delay. I'm using a logic 8 high voltage output ($V_{cc} = 12V$) and a LM317 with a 5V reference and an external RC circuit with a resistance of 100kohm. When I connect a device into the RS232 input it works well. But when I connect a device that supplies a high voltage (less than 5V) and another device to read from the RS232 output it just disconnect the device before the program start. I mean it's like the program read 0. EDIT I added a program to display the communication between my micro controller and my pi. The device I'm using for the communication is a push button with a $V_{CC} = 5V$. The logic 8 output is connected to +5V by a bipolar transistor that is working as an ON/OFF switch. The TXD and RXD pins are connected to GPIO0 and GPIO1. It has been downloaded here. A: The PWM signal used by the RS-232 driver in your example is high, presumably due to a logical 0 in the pin controlling it. That is, there is no need to send a "1" on the TXD line. If you need to send a "1" to signify "send data", then 6d1f23a050
